May 16 Meeting: 'Into Africa' with James McIntyre

In the winter of 2003, Jim fulfilled a lifetime dream—he went on photo safari in East Africa. He visited Lake Manyara National Park, the Ngorongoro Crater, Serengeti National Park, the Lake Ndutu region and Tarangire National Park in northern Tanzania. His talk, 'Into Africa, part I,' will feature photographs of many of the birds and mammals seen and he will describe some of their natural history and aspects of wildlife conservation in modern Africa.

Naturalist-photographer Dr. James McIntyre was born in Toronto, Canada and currently resides in Salt Lake City, Utah. Following a professional scientific career, he has returned to one of his favorite early pursuits - nature and wildlife photography. He has studied and photographed with several renowned wildlife photographers, including Arthur Morris and Joe and Mary Ann McDonald. He has also studied fine-art printing at the Salt Lake Art Center. Many of his color prints have won awards at both state and national levels.

Jim devotes a considerable part of his time and effort to promoting nature-related science, education, and conservation programs. He serves as a Volunteer Naturalist at the Farmington Bay Waterfowl Management Area on the eastern shore of Great Salt Lake and teaches primary school children about bird identification, adaptation and migration, the importance of the Lake's ecosystem, and the necessity of preserving our forests and wetlands. It is his hope that his pictures will enable people to see wild creatures in ways they may not have done before and that this new vision will lead to an increased awareness and understanding of their natural lives and the things that threaten them. Some of his pictures may be viewed on the website www.naturescapes.net.

In addition to the presentation by Dr. McIntyre, election results for the chapter will be announced. The May general meeting concludes the 2005-2006 season of presentations. General meetings/programs for Great Salt Lake Audubon are not held in June, July or August. Look for the new 2006-2007 schedule of general meeting programs beginning in September.

Board Meeting Highlights

By Arne Hultquist, Board Secretary

The Board enjoyed meeting at the new office in February. The amiable facilities at that location should provide a focal point for GSL Audubon activities. The board approved our renewal to Utah Nonprofits Association. The board is very supportive of the Gala and the details continued to be discussed in the meetings. The board will honor Taz Harrington with a memorial bird walk and a small contribution to bird rehabilitation. We agreed in principle to partner with DNR to manage the Kevin Conway Memorial Fund. Our board members continue to be active in conservation activities by working with DNR to develop environmental assessment policies for State land leases and participation in the GSL Alliance and Mercury work group meetings. We can't be everywhere all the time and could use some volunteers for several vacant positions. Please contact any board member if you're interested in becoming actively involved in conservation issues.

March and April board meetings were both busy. We supported a Memorandum of Agreement between the Department of Natural Resources and ourselves to sponsor the Kevin K. Conway Memorial Fund, which will support an annual scholarship at Utah State University. The Board also approved funding for the Eastern Utah Birding Trails Map. The map will be available sometime in the future to GSL Audubon members. The board reviewed and endorsed next year's budget. The insurance policy changes were concluded in the last two board meetings. The new primary provider is Alliance for Nonprofits and the policy covers all of our property and general liability. We also approved another policy for personal accident insurance to cover medical costs associated with any accidents that might occur to volunteers. The updates from the Gala committee have been well received. We are looking forward to the Gala on September 23 at the Gardner Village. The conservation committee is working hard on a policy document that will help us define positions of GSL Audubon on conservation matters and provide us with guidance during public comment processes. I sent comments for the GSL Audubon to the Uinta National Forest Service on the Oil and Gas Leasing Scoping project. We agreed to move the next month's board meeting to the second Tuesday in May. We are continually seeking volunteers to support our various activities and conservation goals. We reviewed a form that all members will receive asking where they might be able to help with those goals. Please take a moment to fill it out and please consider volunteering in some manner. Don't do it for yourself, it's for the birds.

New Treasurer Search

Great Salt Lake Audubon is looking for a Treasurer. We use QuickBooks for our accounting system. A person could work in either their home or our office. If a candidate has any questions they can contact Earle Bevins at 531-1303 or ERBIII@webtv.net.

President's Column

By Nathan Darnall

Well, did you do it? Did you get out and enjoy Utah's wildlife like I suggested in my last column? If not, the good news is there are still plenty of opportunities. Recently, I've been out and have seen many 'firsts' or new birds for the year. Some of my outings have been just me while others have been with groups. One of the reasons people get together for birding field trips is the social interaction. After all, we are social creatures.

And so are most birds. But unlike their two-legged observers, birds don't have a political voice, and so they need us to advocate on their behalf, and Great Salt Lake Audubon does this in many ways. First, we have a presence at the Utah legislature where we interact with lawmakers, political appointees, state agency employees, and other interests, both environmental and not. Often discussions are on general topics or what I might term 'core values' such as preservation of wetlands. Sometimes a member of Audubon (e.g., our policy advocate) will testify before a committee or the legislature on a particular measure or bill. These interactions are important because they get our message into the public discourse. If we were not involved in the process, our concerns about wildlife and wildlife habitat would not be heard and would likely not receive due consideration.

Another way Audubon advocates for birds, wildlife, and wildlife habitat is through the public comment process. Recently, GSLA provided comments to the Uinta National Forest about a proposal to open up land near Strawberry Reservoir to oil and gas development. GSLA is not opposed to energy development since our country relies on energy, but we want to ensure due consideration is given to issues such as sensitive species, NAS Important Bird Areas, riparian and wetland habitats, and problems arising from habitat fragmentation. Since we've raised the awareness of those involved, these topics will be addressed in the proposal.

This is just one example, but GSLA has taken up numerous issues and will continue to do so into the future. Birds don't vote and they can't express their desires or opinions. But as stated earlier, that's one of the reasons GSLA is here. So birds do have a 'voice' after all.

THE BIG SIT

Leader: Colby Newman

Okay. It's time to try something a little different...a birding event that everyone can participate in—young and old, expert birder and novice. GSLA will be joining Utah County Birders and Bridgerland Audubon in doing a Big Sit on the same date....just different places. Then we'll all share our data. What is a Big Sit? Colby will choose a location for our 17-foot diameter circle. Participants can sit (or stand or walk in circles) within this space for as long as they like, beginning whenever they'd like and keep track of all the birds they can see or hear. We'll have chairs and scopes and field guides. You can bring a picnic. We'll be able to learn from each other. You can even help with the Bluebird boxes first and Big Sit later in the day! Call Colby (598-4367) or email (crn230@gmail.com) for details.

Great Salt Lake Bird Festival

You can still sign up for Great Salt Lake Bird Festival field trips. Most trips that utilize buses for transportation still have room. How about birding at Bear River Refuge on Friday with their biologist, Bridget Olsen, who will first give you tips on shorebird identification at the new Visitor's Center. Saturday you can't beat the opportunity for birds and geology on Antelope Island in the morning with John Bellmon and Genevieve Atwood; then behind-the-gates during breeding season (a rare opportunity) at Farmington Bay in the afternoon with The Bay's manager, Rich Hansen. There's still room available on Sunday's Antelope Island trip, Monday's Jordanelle and Rock Cliff trip with Frank Howe and the overnight trip to Bear Lake with Don Paul and Genevieve Atwood. Others too are available including the DUCK tour. Check www.greatsaltlakebirdfest.com for details and then call 801-451-3286 to register.

Lee Creek Grand Opening

On May 24 at 11 a.m. National Audubon will open the Lee Creek Natural Area for the public to study and enjoy nature and the Great Salt Lake. The ribbon cutting ceremony will include many recognizable names including Mayor Peter Carroon, LDS Presiding Bishop David Burton, Kennecott Utah Copper CEO Bill Champion, and Jonathan Stacey from Bird Life International. Access to the site is along the I-80 frontage road between 7200 West and Saltair.

Highway Cleanup Bag and Bird

By Sylvia Gray

On Saturday, March 25, we again picked up garbage along I-80 between mile markers 110-112. It was a beautiful sunny day as we left Salt Lake City but, my, was the wind strong out there. At one point I put some garbage in the bag and the wind blew it out! Now that's not fair. It was distressing to see that so much garbage had accumulated in the 5 months since we did the last pick-up. Plastic drink bottles and styrofoam comprised the greatest amount. There were some aluminum cans but not many. Recycling seems to be working in part. Now if only we could persuade people to recycle their drink bottles.

After a couple of hours we drove to the Inland Sea Shorebird Reserve and delighted in seeing 20 species, mostly ducks. The highlight, however, was seeing a Barn Owl fly out from under a bridge. What a beautiful bird.

Field Trip Visits Greater Sage Grouse Lek in Henefer

By Roberta Wherritt

When you can experience seeing the target bird and have a great breakfast with kindred spirits the day has to be superb. Even though we started out VERY early, we were rewarded with a great show.

This time around there seemed to be more females at the Henefer Greater Sage Grouse Lek than there have been before; therefore, the males were in great form. As daylight came, we realized they were all over the lek, both on and off the road. For a little over an hour we were enthralled with the sight and sound of the males displaying, even though the females seemed more interested in eating than in the males' courting efforts.

Finally we realized that breakfast awaited in Morgan, but first we did a quick stop in East Canyon and saw Common Loons, Common Mergansers and Ring Neck Ducks. On our way home along the frontage road on I-84 near Henefer we witnessed Turkey Vultures enjoying spreading their wings to the sun, a Great Blue Heron rookery, a Bald Eagle, Sandhill Cranes and a large flock of White Faced Ibis. Needless to say, the group wants to go back next year.
